About the Spectrum Project...

The Spectrum Project is a creative initiative that integrates music, dance, drama, and art to provide enriching experiences for children with diverse abilities. Productions are collaboratively developed by the performers, guided by college students. Each year, the project engages over 60 performers and their families.

Thomas and Rebekah

Based in the Cedar Valley, Spectrum Project performers range in age from 5 to 19 and meet every Saturday starting in January. Each performer is paired with a dedicated Spectrum Project Buddy for the entire season. These buddies, drawn from UNI, Allen College, and Hawkeye Community College, volunteer weekly to support and collaborate with the performers.

Shelby & Catie

Since its inception in 2015, the Spectrum Project has been dedicated to offering performing arts opportunities to children with differing abilities in the Cedar Valley. Additionally, it now provides singing lessons through Spectrum Sings! and facilitates a rock band known as Spectrum Rocks!

Lilly

The Spectrum Project is sustained through the involvement of participating families, support from the UNI School of Music, and contributions from the community.
